DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The Llewellyn Farmhouse is located on the southern side of Warnick Road approximately two miles east of Gilmore. The "T" shaped frame house is two stories tall, three bays wide on the facade (eastern elevation), and one bay deep. The building appears to have originally been four bays wide on the facade. A two-story frame addition with a gabled roof abuts the center of the western elevation.

The frame house is covered with german siding. It rests on a high random ashlar stone foundation. The gabled roof is covered with corrugated metal. Any evidence of the existence of a facade porch has been obscured by a covering of insul brick on the facade. A shed roofed porch on the southern elevation of the addition has been enclosed. Windows are pegged 2/2 sash surmounted by a drip moulding. An entrance located offset to the south of the center of the facade includes a door of two panels and one light. A transom over the entrance has been enclosed. A brick chimney is located in the center of the original portion of the building.

A frame barn covered with horizontal boardsiding has a gambrel roof. A silo constructed of hollow building tiles is located on the southern elevation of the barn.
